

Chiltern Green, Bendish, Ayot St. Lawrence, Codicote, Devils Dyke and Nomansland

Team 2 Report - 16th September 2005

Nomansland

Whilst standing on the road in the woods in the middle of Nomansland three of the team reported what sounded like a double thud coming from within the woods in the direction from which we had originally come. The area was investigated but nothing was found. Both Gayna and Paul reported that they felt uneasy in the woods, in Gayna's case this was particularly noticeable around the area of an old dirt road making her want to leave quickly. Paul felt as if he was being watched and followed. A distinct cold spot was found near the dirt road. By now the night was cold but it was not so in the woods yet this area felt a lot colder with no discernable reason (good tree coverage and no breaks to allow the wind in for instance [we felt no wind]).

The picture below shows a nice orb with either a hole in it or is it an eye?

Ayot St. Lawrence

Nothing to report.

Codicote

Nothing to report but we did take one strange photograph. During the time we were there we did not pick up on anything but we did take one very unusual picture which shows a mist over some of the tombstones and this is reproduced on the right with a close-up shown below. That night there was no mist anywhere and the air was relatively dry. The direction the camera was pointing was back towards the entrance to the churchyard which lies several metres beyond the gravestones.

No one had been in the area where the mist appears to be prior to the image being taken; no one was near the photographer who was not aware of breathing at the time it was taken.

Bendish

Only thing to report was a cold spot felt along one of the side roads by Gayna. The picture below was taken in the village centre and displays loads of orbs, oddly enough it is the only picture taken over water (a puddle in the road).

