

Wigginton
October 9th 2009

Investigation Team: Andy, Bill, Steph, Elaine, Marion, Richard, Sam, Dee, Sarah, Billie and Carla

The site at Wigginton that was under investigation was Tring Park also said to be named as Wigginton Common although it is not named so on any maps. Visitors to the park have reported seeing Roman soldiers and Roundheads. The site being used as a camp by Cromwell's troops, the latter sighting is not surprising.

To get to the park, the investigation team walked through Bull's Green Wood. The wood is like any other with the exception of having a folly Summerhouse and an Obelisk. The Summerhouse was used as a backdrop for the team photography (see the Wigginton photo album on the website) and the team then walked down to the Obelisk and stopped to take pictures. Here a white figure was seen moving between the trees. Already the site seemed to be having an effect on equipment, with one member's torch batteries failing and another member's mobile phone battery failing; both of which were fully charged. During the vigils a Dictaphone in use failed despite also having new batteries.

Three teams investigated the park. The area being so vast it was possible for each team to cover large areas without coming in to contact with each other.

The vigils provided some very interesting information and experiences, some of which are listed below:

Audibles: The chopping & sawing of wood, a snarling dog and a man's voice was heard by different members at the same time. Two members also reported hearing jingling and tinkling sounds; one was heard on the walk through the woods to the common at the start of the evening and the other during the vigils.

Impressions: Roman helmet, Men hiding in the trees ready to pounce, a man lying on the ground spying on a group of people on the other side of the park. Two members in different teams also picked up a horse and rider.

Feelings: A sense of people moving in a patrol motion, Uncomfortable feeling on the bridge over the A41 and that something unpleasant happened nearby.

Visual: A red blob of light, a large grey shadow, dark shadows and figures

Words/Names: Phillipe, Soldiers and horses, One member heard the words 'but there is danger here' and when asking why the reply came as 'they march here' and the name Jason was picked up.

Physical: During a séance, two members had physical sensations concerning their lower legs. One member felt a tugging and the other felt something gripping them round the ankle.

A large amount of information was recorded at Tring Park, too much to report here but the full and detailed reports can be found on our website. LPS will be returning to Tring Park in 2010 to investigate the bridge as it was felt that this warrants further investigation.
