

Salford

Salford is a small village in the West of Bedfordshire. Its name derives from the Saxon Seathford, which mean Willow Ford. Brittens Lane and Broughton Road.

The hauntings of these sites are alleged to be the Broughton Calf who has been seen at midnight crying for its mother. The other on Brittens Lane is reported to be a dog with two heads and eight legs. The latter haunting is situated close to a local pub.