

Investigation Report

Investigation Site	Hunsdon Airfield
Investigation Date	21.08.2020
Report By	Andrew Fazekas
Team Members	Andy F, Ben T , Marie

Background

LPS have investigated this airfield a few times, the last time being 2012 when we had access to the whole site. So imagine our surprise to find part of the field now under a housing estate and a large portion now a plough field that prevented access to the monument and other parts of the field we had easily walked around just a few years ago.

Friday the 21st of August was to see Luton Paranormal society make its first visit to a location that had previously been investigated some eight years prior. Only Andy remained from that investigation, so it gave an excellent opportunity for the remaining team members to investigate a fresh site so to speak and to have a complete open mind.

As the team made the hour or so journey from Luton to the outskirts of Ware it had started to rain however upon arrival at the location good fortune smiled upon us and it would appear that it had not rained at all in that particular part of the county.

A good omen you may think however it soon became apparent that the security of the site had somewhat been beefed up since Andy's last visit with the runway impossible to access from the point that we had accessed the site. It is starting to become quite common as the years pass by that these types of locations are becoming more and more secure. Possibly down to the fact that most will likely be turned into housing developments over the next few years so as a society we will attempt to investigate as many as we can before it happens.

Despite the earlier rain the cloud cover with the assistance of the wind had cleared the crisp night sky and a sea of stars together with the obligatory satellites passing overhead from time to time could clearly be seen. An excellent opportunity to double the night up as a UFO investigation that sadly this year have been in short supply.

An area that the team were able to access was near to what one member believed would have been a communications tower with what looked like an old rusty turbine at the top. Previous reports have identified this as a fire station.

The area however appeared to be possibly covered by a CCTV camera and although the team had not seen any Keep out signs it was decided that we would keep our distance in order to negate becoming a security dogs next dinner or worst getting our collars felt lol.

The team settled down for a vigil and various members were able to pick up on different things.

Ben had felt that an airman dressed fully in flying jacket, big boots and oxygen mask was standing by the fence observing the team continuously as if to be wanting to know what we were up to. He was not sure why, but he felt that the airman was American and sensed there was a connection to Mustang aircraft.

At the same time Andy who was sat nearby sensed a group of young men in their twenties coming up the path also in flying jackets and one had light coloured curly hair. A critic would say well it is night time how can you tell this information?. But we are not talking about a visual sighting as such more from the minds eye and a sixth sense.

As Ben sat silently, he was suddenly startled and looked quickly over his shoulder sensing that Someone had just breathed very loudly by his left ear. No one was there. Other members during this vigil felt different things and team member Maria was also drawn to the area of fence line that Ben had been drawn too.

Marie notes that she did not hear much but my mind's eye was giving me a jeep with a star on it but seeing Lancaster bombers. after the 20min via I was then told it was WW11 Airfield Maria had a sense that there was an airman watching at the gate, Ben had sensed two Airman watching.

Due to the weather we double up this up with watching the skies for UFO's. We did at one point we got excited as we saw several what we thought flying objects but then we realized it was illusion it was the movement of the clouds. However, the odd shooting star and several satellites did make an appearance

An experiment with the ever faithful Olivius 3 produced a mixed bag of results with it responding once again well to Ben and Andy's questions. As the night drew on and the wind picked up it became much colder and the team decided to call it a night but with the hope of returning to the location in the near future to complete at least one more investigation before this old WW2 airfield is lost forever.
